

The Landscapes of Wales are a precious natural asset, which need to be protected and enhanced. We are rapidly losing so much of what is left of our local culture and environment and when we finally wake up and find it is all gone, it will not be possible to re-invent it. The countryside in which we live is as much our cultural inheritance as certain buildings and villages are, so it is vital that it is nurtured, cared for and appreciated. That is why I could not be more pleased to support the CPRW's campaign.
